One model, nine sectors

Hotels, banks, stores, clinics, airports, airlines, dealerships, universities and events share the same problem: demand doesn't match the staff available at each location. The answer is the same, too.

SECTOR PROPOSAL SERIES
Interactive Powers · October 2026

Phygital Hotel

When the front desk is short-staffed, the lobby keeps serving guests.

Phygital Branch

The specialist, in any branch, no appointment needed.

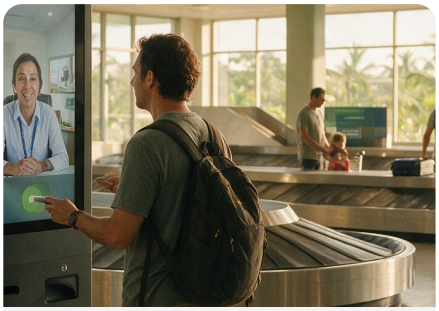

Phygital Store

When the specialist isn't there, the sale stays in the store.

Phygital Clinic

When the front desk is swamped, the clinic keeps serving patients.

Phygital Airport

Travelers land ready to buy, and someone is there to help.

Phygital Airline

When a flight goes wrong, passengers still get help.

Phygital Dealership

When every salesperson is busy, the sale keeps moving.

Phygital Campus

When enrollment opens, every student still gets served.

Phygital Event

More visitors served, with the same experts.

The idea Shared remote human capacity, connected to every service point through a kiosk, tablet or phone. Each sector has its own three-page proposal.

THE SAME ANSWER ACROSS ALL NINE

One shared remote hub

The same advisors and experts serve many locations, sites and time slots at once.

Capacity follows demand

More stations open at peak times or when someone is out, without staffing for the maximum.

Conversations that close

A sale, signature, booking or appointment in the same session, with VGO pay-by-link.
